GRENADA COLLEGE OPENS SEPTEMBER 18.

New Students to be Classified Sept. 17. New Students Have Been Enrolled From Five Different States. Y. W. C. A. Will Welcome Girls. Few Changes in Faculty.

Grenada College will open for the fall term on Sept. 18. New students will be classified Sept. 17. There will be few changes in the faculty and the old students have registered even better than was anticipated. New students have been registered from five different states and it is expected that all rooms will be taken at the opening. The members of the Y. W. C. A. will be on hand to welcome new students, each one taking a "sister" in whose welfare she takes especial interest throughout the year.

Nineteen members of the class of 1923 will enter the schoolroom this fall as teachers. It is a remarkable fact that out of 154 graduates, 145 have become teachers. Five are teachers in colleges, three are on mission fields and eight have been conducting Sunday School training schools in rural sections this summer. It is impossible to supply the demand for teachers, which speaks well both for the character of the students and for their training.

It is the ambition of President Countiss to see the institution endowed and freed from financial burdens. Appeals are being made to the Methodists of North Mississippi to complete the work they have so well begun. Some handsome gifts will become available when the conference says the work shall be done.

DEPT EDUCATION ADVISES ON SCHOOL MATTERS

Now that the time of year is approaching for the opening of schools and the political campaign is a thing of the past, people in the various school districts will begin to plan for the very best session of school they have ever had. In the great number of things that will be done the following should not be overlooked.

(1) The teachers should be in the community at least one week before the school is to open.

(2) The school house and grounds should be in good shape for the reception of teachers and children on the first day of school.

(3) The trustees should see that the proper amount of fuel is provided for the winter.

(4) Arrangements should be made for a general meeting at the school house either on the first day of school or on some day during the first week for the encouragement of the children.

(5) Community differences and family feuds will be forgotten for the sake of the children.

(6) The teachers, trustees, children and people generally of the school district are going to get ready to make a good start so that the greatest possible amount of good may be done.

IMPORTANT MEETING YALOBUWA COMMANDERY

A very important business meeting of the Yalobusha Commandery, No. 28, K. T. will be held next Monday night, Sept. 3, which all members are urged to attend.

Whitfield Nominated For Governor By Over 10,000

Whitfield Sent Up Salt River. Work of State's Redemption Completed. Garner Wins for Commissioner of Agriculture. LaGrone Defeats O'Bryant for Railroad Commissioner. Yeager the Victor in Tax Assessor's Race. Whitten Succeeds Rounsville as Beat Four Supervisor and Hayden Elected From District Five Over Gray. The New Supervisors.

The second primary election for the nomination of State and County officers where there were majorities in the first primary was held throughout Mississippi on Tuesday, August 28. For state offices there appeared on the ticket but two candidates for Governor, H. L. Whitfield and Theodore G. Bilbo, and P. P. Garner for re-election to the office of commissioner of agriculture and J. C. Holton. It began raining at an early hour that morning in Grenada and rained pretty well all day; the rain was rather general over north Mississippi and no doubt served to keep a large number from the polls.

At this writing it is difficult to state by what majority but there can be no question that Whitfield has been awarded the Governorship over Ex-Gov. Bilbo by a safe majority, certainly not less than 10,000 and probably by as much as fifteen thousand votes. It was a gala day for the untrified Democracy of the state. Salt river was well cleaned out and the Hittites, the Jebusites, the Perrizites, the Libelites, the Coattailites, the Graftites, the Poodleites, as well as many jumping jacks in the political forest, were put in their little yaws and told to make it up the river or perish. It has been quite a long while since this famed stream has had so many political cripples thrust upon its bosom at one time, but they are there nevertheless.

The returns indicate that Whitfield got practically 90 per cent of the Conner vote and that the Franklin vote, and in some quarters the Bell vote, particularly is this true of Jackson, went to Bilbo. It appears that but little more than 80 per cent of the vote polled in the first primary went to the polls. In many places, it is stated that there were numbers not to mark their ballots at all on the Governor's race. Garner, the present Commissioner of Agriculture, is a winner over Holton. Garner had to carry the load in some places of having been first appointed by Bilbo, yet the same thing is true of Prof. W. F. Bond, State Superintendent of Education and nobody ran against him.

The letter follows:

Dresden, July, 1923.
From Postinspector Walter Jurgel.
Post Office Dresden N. 23.
Germany, Saxony.

Postmaster, Esq.

Dear Sir:

I beg your pardon, sir, please permit a request. Will you be so kind as to take the stamps enclosed for you, for a post-office or another collector. All stamps are different, no more used for post paid and only a little quantity is given out during some months.

If you wish to have some more of the enclosed collection or of greater values, I would willingly send you as much as you wish.

The hard time after the war is heavy to bear for all post-office families. We must also assist our old parents, who have been poor men after the war and who have an income of 4000 Marks a year for which they now receive only half a bread. I oblige myself to give of the net proceeds of this business only my parent and others poor small capitalists, who all are perished with hunger by the continue depreciating of German money.

I can only thank you, my dear sir, for your charity. I wish you always a good health and a long life. God save your work of charity.

Be so kind as to return the stamps, if you cannot sell them, or be so kind as to send me the most little amount in paper money of your county in a registered letter. Will close, if you did the good work for charity to sell them.

Please permit that I remain,

Yours obedient and thankful servant.

Mrs. Postinspector,

Grenada County ran true to her record and "voted 'em straight" without any wobbling or backsliding. Thus it is now Gov. H. L. Whitfield. The State Executive Committee meets Tuesday, next, when the result will be officially declared. In the meantime the public may claim and counter claims, but can sit steady in the belief that Whitfield is elected and Mississippi comes out of the slush and the mire of the last seven years with expectant hope.

In addition to state candidates, that of railroad commissioner for this district was decided at the second primary. The candidates were T. O'Bryant of Batesville and W. F. LaGrone of West Point. LaGrone won. O'Bryant is a loyal Democrat and has been highly honored by the people of his county. He served there as sheriff, as chancery clerk, and as a member of the board of supervisors and has taken an active part in the politics of his County for years, and during that time has made many political enemies who rose up to smite him in this race. LaGrone, the winner, stands high in his home town. He has never been active in politics but is the son of Rev. W. F. LaGrone, who lived to a ripe old age and who was well and most favorably known throughout North Mississippi. As a consequence of his father's ministry, a vast majority of the Methodist ministers of the district made themselves rather active for LaGrone. These men made their influence felt in every neighborhood and in every community, and it is to them and the good and honored name of his father that Mr. LaGrone is due the success he has attained. Mr. O'Bryant is a Metho-

HENRY L. WHITFIELD, The Winner.

HAD REACHED HIS 87TH YEAR, Paso, Texas. The mother of these died in 1900, and in 1909, he was married a second time to the good and noble woman who survives him and who has so unselfishly loved and cared for him in his declining years.

R. V. Pearson Passed Away After Eventful Life.

Mr. R. V. Pearson died at the home of his son, I. O. Pearson, in Grenada on Friday night, August 24, at shortly past 9 o'clock. His remains were carried to Water Valley in the afternoon of the next day and buried in the lot besides those of his first wife who died in 1900.

The members of Barksdale Camp, U. C. V.'s followed the remains to the train in Grenada and the Confederate Veterans officiated at the funeral in Water Valley, the services being said by his pastor, Rev. E. R. Henderson, of the Central Baptist church, of which Mr. Pearson had long been a member.

For years Mr. Pearson has suffered more or less from the effects of a wound received during the Civil War, one of his legs; during the past night, the wound became inflamed and failed to yield to treatment and no doubt was the immediate cause of his death.

Mr. Pearson was a son of I. O. Pearson and wife and was born in Halifax County, N. C., October 19, 1836. His father moved to Yalobusha County, Mississippi, when he was but three years old and settled on a farm between Coffeeville and Water Valley, and it was in that vicinity that he grew to manhood. When the clash came between the North and the South in 1860, he entered the Confederate service and made a brave and gallant soldier. When hostilities ceased, he returned to his home to take up the threads of life, and in 1865 made Miss Lavina Rice of Yalobusha County his wife. To this union there were born six children, four of whom survive. I. O. R. V. Jr., and Mrs. L. R. Wasika and John Kuhn, the three last named all being residents of El Paso, the best that is in him, but as a husband and as a father and especially as a father who was left to care for several children whose mother has been called away. He is looking after the education of his children and the better things in their lives, and the writer, having known Mr. Pearson since the boyhood of each when we used to study in the same school room and climb trees together, could but think of what was throbbing in the heart of "Roy Pearson" when at the commencement exercises of Grenada College last June he had two splendid and lovely daughters to graduate. District 5 has chosen a worthy successor to the true, dependable and faithful, G. P. Cunningham who has served that district as supervisor during the last four years.

The nominees complete for membership on the next board of supervisors of Grenada County are: Kemp Mattingly, district 1; J. H. James, district 2; Warner V. Horton, district 3; J. C. Whitten, district 4 and L. T. Hayden, district 5. Mattingly and James are serving on the present board.

To the bereft The Sentinel tends the sincerest sympathy.

The End Is Drawing Near!

In a few short weeks will come the close of one of the biggest profit-sharing propositions that has ever been staged in this part of the country when the last of the being distributed by twenty-eight progressive business firms of the town of Grenada is given away. There will be two more times that you will have the opportunity of securing your share of this magnificent sum when the final two distributions are made.

$500.00 Will Be Given Away October 6 to twenty-five different persons, the first of whom will receive one hundred dollars in gold.

Since the time is so short before the close, it will pay you to anticipate your wants and make your purchases ahead. All are familiar with the method and plan of distributing these gifts--with each dollar purchase or payment on account at any of the business houses whose names appear below you are given one ticket which may mean that you will become the possessor of one of the awards. Save your tickets until the final day.

| Supervisors' Court Aug. 1923 term. | |
| The Board of Supervisors of said county (after having given notice to | | the tax payers of said county, by publishing the following: "To the Tax Payers of Grenada county, State of Mississippi:

You will please take notice that the assessments of real and personal property on the rolls for 1923 have been changed and corrected by this Board so as to comply with the laws of this state and that said revised rolls are now open for examination and that any objections to any assessments contained in said revised rolls must be made in writing and filed with the Clerk of this Board on or before the first Monday in August, 1923, at his office in the City of Grenada, said county, and that any or all assessments to which no objection is then and there made, will be made final.

This the 11th day of July, 1923. The Board of Supervisors of said county, by J. B. Keeton, Clerk of said Board.

In The Grenada Sentinel, a newspaper located and published at Grenada, Mississippi, which notice was published and circulated by said newspaper on the 20th day of July, 1923, in said county, and was on the 20th day of July, 1923, posted in the court house in the City of Grenada, said county, by said Clerk, met in the court house on the 6th day of August, 1923, being the first Monday in August, 1923, and it continued in session from day to day, hearing objections to assessments, taking testimony of witnesses and examining books, records and papers with reference to the assessments of property. It made such changes in the assessments (as fixed by it on the rolls, at its July, 1923, meeting) that it was satisfied should be made to fix assessments of property at its actual value so as to establish an equality and uniformity of taxation according to value among the tax payers of said county. Now, being satisfied that said assessment rolls contain assessments fair, equal, uniform, and just, according to the value of the real and personal property therein described, it is, therefore hereby ordered that the said rolls and the assessments therein now contained be and they are hereby accepted, approved and made final, and that the Final Recapitulations of said assessments rolls be certified to the State Tax Commission on the blanks furnished by it.

Ordered that the Old Providence Middle Road be opened up and maintained from Irby's store to new cross road as petitioned for by B. W. Wells et al a distance of about 1½ miles.

We, your committee appointed to investigate the security offered by W. B. Hoffa for a loan from Sixteenth section school fund have made said investigation and find that the value of real estate offered as security is of more than double the amount applied for, and we, therefore recommend that said loan of $2,000 for 3 years at 6% per annum be made to him upon the filing of an abstract of the title duly certified to by the attorney of the Board showing good title to said property of said W. B. Hoffa and free from any liens.

This day coming on for consideration, the matter of letting contract for the construction of and graveling in the East and West Highway from Grenada to Beat Five line at from Beat five line to Tallahatchie county line known as Federal Aid Project No. 140 and the State Highway Engineer, and the Federal representative being present, whereupon the said State Highway Engineer in open session of the Board proceeded to open an announce the several sealed bids submitted for constructing said highway in response to notice to bidders and after duly considering all of the bids submitted the said State Highway Engineer and the Board and Highway Commissioners of Road District of Beat Five find that J. Why He Called It "Portland" Cement

In 1824, an English mason wanted to produce a better cement than any then in use. To do this he burned finely ground clay and limestone together at a high heat. The hard balls [called clinker] that resulted were ground to a fine powder. When a mixture of this dull gray powder with water had hardened, it was the color of a popular building stone quarried on the Isle of Portland off the coast of England. So this mason, Joseph Aspdin, called his discovery "portland" cement.

That was less than one hundred years ago.

Portland cement was not made in the United States until fifty years ago. The average annual production for the ten years following was only 36,000 sacks. Last year the country used over 470,000,000 sacks of portland cement. Capacity to manufacture was nearly 600,000,000 sacks.

Cement cannot be made everywhere because raw materials of the necessary chemical composition are not found in sufficient quantities in every part of the country. But it is now manufactured in 27 states by 120 plants. There is at least one of these plants within shipping distance of any community in this country.

To provide a cement supply that would always be ample to meet demand has meant a good deal in costly experience to those who have invested in the cement industry. There have been large capital investments with low returns.

In the last twenty-five years, 328 cement plants have been built or have gone through some stage of construction or financing. 162 were completed and placed in operation.

Only 120 of these plants have survived the financial, operating and marketing risks of that period. Their capacity is nearly 30 per cent greater than the record year's demand.

These are a few important facts about an industry that is still young. Advertisements to follow will give you more of these facts and will tell something of the important place cement occupies in the welfare of every individual.

THE VICTORY SEALED

The work began in Mississippi in 1918, and which lacked only a few artistic touches of being completed on August 7, was sealed on August 28, when a brass-toed boot, so to speak, was used on the gable end of Bilboism and Whitfield was made the man to apply the finally finishing touches. With Bilbo went all the hyphenated crowd and ism which have been spawned in Mississippi politics for the last dozen years or more. Had this crowd not been giving forth such foul odors for the years, one might be disposed to hold his nose at the number of political corpses left along the shores as a result of the continued and determined efforts of those who have been carrying the truth to the people about the political doings and the misdeeds of this set of official brigands.

The Sentinel has longed for this day for a number of years and has mourned because it found it not, but it is here. The forces of good government are to be congratulated. They have triumphed, and set up in place of the golden calf of pelf, spite, plunder and debauchery the standard of clean and honest government and a square deal for every man, regardless of how he voted or to what so-called faction he may belong.

The fight has been one to call forth the best in the State. And the best in the State rallied and with patriotic step and undaunted purpose marched to victory. All honor to such men as Judge Robert Powell, Marion Reily, Earl Brewer, Pat Harrison, Hubert Stephens, Fred Sullens, Col. Henry and hundreds of others who fought in season and out of season for the cause which triumphed Tuesday. Mississippians will not feel as they have done frequently within the last few years, whispering the name of their State when abroad. A new day is here.

But let no one be deceived. With the victory comes a great responsibility. Let us not revel so much in what we have just accomplished but let us rather begin to survey the work that is to be done and set our hearts and our brains to the task of what the victory imposes.

WHY DON'T PEOPLE GO TO CHURCH?

Among the many puzzling things of this period is the dwindling of those who attend upon the preaching. It is possibly true that hardly more than 50 per cent of those who have their names upon the church rolls and whose families would have it said of them were they to pass away. "For many years he was a faithful member of church", attend the services regularly.

From the New Orleans Daily States of August 27, we take the following editorial written by its veteran editor, Col. Robert Ewing, a thinker of the old school. Col. Ewing uses as a title to the editorial, "Feed my lambs." There is so much food for thought in it that we are reproducing it in full in the hope that it may be of service to Sentinel readers. It is worthy of being passed along:

Dr. Chas. F. Aked, the noted Baptist minister, who was once pastor of Rockefeller's New York church, in a statement to a London newspaper says that there are less than 40,000,000 communicants in American churches. These figures, he says, "were compiled with a fine carelessness which would not be tolerated in Wall Street."

In many of the churches, he says, night services have been abandoned, and in others the movies have been installed to draw a crowd. He raises the question:

"Can the movies save the church, and with the movies can the church save the world?"

His answer to his own inquiry is: "I have my doubts."

Dr. Aked's figures may be challenged, but the average churchgoer in most any part of this great country will agree with him when he says that the churches are not drawing as they did a generation ago. It is a pity that Dr. Aked did not analyze the situation and tell us why this is so.

Churches today are playing to empty pews. Why? Has the pulpit no message for the people? Do the people get no word of hope, of help, of comfort from the pulpit? That's what people go to church to hear, is it not?

From the time of John the Baptist to the present day the preachers who have had a "burning word" for their congregations have had no complaint of empty pews and lack of interest on the part of the people. You may read your history carefully or carelessly and you must be impressed with this fact.

Nearly a century ago a great old Alabamian, Bishop Andrew, over whom the Methodist church, in 1844, split, told the brethren of one of his conferences, during a debate on whether or not churches should be equipped with bells: "Brethren, put the bell in the pulpit and you'll draw the crowds."

Protestant churches in America are running mad over Higher Criticism—that is, the ministers are—and herein, we believe, you will find the explanation of dwindling attendance and falling membership. You seldom hear a preacher using brimstone in his sermons. The pulpit is trying to make it as easy for people to get to heaven as it is to pay a social visit, and the average sermon is about as impressive as the average conversation in society.

A brilliant young minister paid a recent visit to The States' office and in the course of his talk said that his denomination had tried out all the modern things that other churches had tried and were trying, and found that they were generating ice instead of heat. They had highly-paid choirs that sang oratorios, and the pulpit discussed biology and genetics and the cosmic cosmogony and the atom and man's original ancestor, the monkey, all sugar-coated with mild pleasanties. One day the older men had an inspiration. "Let's give 'em a little brimstone. Let's put the congregation to singing 'Rock of Ages,' 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' and some of the eternal soul-stirring hymns;" said he. This was done and this young minister says they are again filling their churches with the simple Gospel that Christ preached, and that they are building new churches. This is going on right here in New Orleans.

Perhaps this is the answer to Dr. Aked's question. There is nothing wrong with the people. They come when they are fit. And that was Christ's last message, spoken to Simon Peter: "Feed my sheep; feed my lambs."

Human nature is a funny sort of thing. It cuts many dimensions. We have been somewhat amused at the humabaloo raised by taxpayers about taxpaying time in contrast with the lethargy and indifference of many of these same people when it comes to choosing public officers who fix tax levies and who spend the money of these tax payers.

BILBO NO PLUG AS A CAMPAIGNER.

Regardless of what one may think of Bilbo and of his sincerity in his platform professions, it must be conceded that he is far from a plug as a campaigner. He made a remarkable race. He is a scrapper and Mississippians, indeed the American people, admire gogetiveness in any man. Bilbo is daring; he is risky, and however leaky his ship may be, he skids it about over the waters at such a rate of speed that the casual thinker fails to see the leaks. If Theodore were built on the right pattern and would turn his attention to the serious and better things with the same zeal he displays in sky-rocketing around for office, he could render a real service to the public. With all of his "cussedness" he is a likeable fellow and will make one feel kindly towards him in spite of himself. And mark you, don't ever hook him up for a knave or a fool. He has lots of gray matter in that ill-shaped noodle of his. This, in brief, is a graphic picture of Theodore.

SOME CHURCH LEADERS SEEM CONFOUNDED

Undoubtedly some high in authority in the church world, especially among those who lecture and are supposed to teach others, seem to be worse than confounded, otherwise thousands of others have been traveling woefully in the dark for these years.

Being a Methodist, we refer particularly to the lectures given by Dr. S. G. Bland of Toronto, Canada, before the recent great gathering of Methodists at Junaluska. We recommend most heartily the letter of Bishop Cannon to the general Sunday School secretary protesting against the delivery of the lectures under the circumstances. The Bishop stated that he hardly knew whether to fix the responsibility for engaging Dr. Bland on the general secretary, Dr. Shackford, or on Dr. E. B. Chappell of Nashville, who is the editor in chief of the Sunday School literature of the Methodist Church, South.

The Bishop quotes Dr. Bland as saying that the Ten Commandments were not given to Moses by God and that they are not of Mosaic origin at all, but were taken from the Code of Hammurabi and were edited and improved by Jewish writers. This and many other declarations reputed to Dr. Bland are absolutely at cross purposes with what the religious world has believed for the centuries and show, if the Doctor is correct, that we have been and are still in a wilderness quite like the one the children of Israel are reputed (?) to have passed through in their journey from Egypt towards the land of Canaan.

We shall not venture into a field that seems to be bewildering so many theologians; they will have to clarify that atmosphere themselves if it is ever clarified so far as we are concerned. In truth, we are not much concerned about their discoveries and hairsplittings. But Drs. Shackford and Chappell certainly assumed a great deal when they engaged to take the funds of the Methodist church to employ a man to lecture whom a very great many would class as a heretic. The learned brethren among the "higher-ups" are going to keep toying and wrangling about these alleged "discoveries" or "revelations" until the ordinary laymen back at home are aroused to take a hand and then something will be doing sure enough.

All the Protestant churches are having more or less trouble with their "modernist" and "fundamentalists."

Every sincere believer should welcome any light thrown upon the preparation and exposition of Holy Writ. No inquiring mind will hold that all has been learned.

But it has seemed to us that much of what is proclaimed as "new" is the result of the "specialist" who has apparently felt that he must justify his great scholarship (?) and the fact that he has been set apart for some special work.

But God can be counted on to take care of his Word. Scholars may dispute about nonessentials but the everlasting truths of God are clearly written in its pages, so out of disputations let it be hoped that more of the grandeur and glory of heaven will be revealed and that humanity may hear better than ever before the heart throbs of the Savior of the world as he lingered upon Calvary's cross.

THE CERTAINTY OF RETRIBUTION

The certainty of retribution is both an Old Testament and a New Testament teaching. We find it proclaimed in the 32d Chapter and 23d verse of Numbers in the remarkable statement "Be sure your sin will find you out;" and Paul impressively voiced the same great truth in the 7th verse of the 6th Chapter of Galatians: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Indulgence in sin entails consequences from which there is absolutely no escape, except as we find forgiveness through repentance and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; and even that does not always undo all the harmful effects of an evil life. The gray-haired transgressor may come to Jesus as he nears the end of his earthly pilgrimage and find pardon and be regenerated; but the mercy extended him will not recall the years he has wasted, or the opportunities he has lost, or the strength that he has squandered in the service of Satan. As has been said, "A man may murder his fellow-man, and Christ may forgive him, as He was willing to forgive His own murderers; but forgiveness will not recall the dead man from his grave, nor dry his widow's tears." One may, by the help of the Holy Spirit, forsake the paths of sin and be assured of an eternal home in the sky, while one's influence which has enticed others into the wrong way may, through them, continue to be a curse to humanity through the speeding decades that follow.

Happy the man who from early youth has known the living Lord, and whose feet have kept in virtue's shining way, having the least possible of the stain of sin upon his soul and the smallest possible measure of its awful effects upon his life! And if one has been so unfortunate as to come into the thrall of evil, the sooner one secures deliverance from it, the better it will be for that one in time and in eternity, for the fewer and less deep will be the marks of one's transgression, to say nothing of the peril that every moment besets one who is not a Christian.

"Hasten, sinner to be wise!
Stay not for the morrow's sun;
Wisdom, if thou still despise,
Harder is it to be won."

—Southern Methodist

The Detroit Free Press says a conceited man is one who boasts of his new baby and admits grudgingly that his wife was also present. Well, we have to admit that this is a rather clever definition of a conceited man. There is no difference between him and a Shanghai rooster who struts and monopolizes all the credit for the young chickens.—N. O. Daily States.

There are several thousand defeated candidates over Mississippi who are thinking about this time that hundreds of their fellow citizens have never taken any of the new drug called scopolamin which it is claimed makes people tell the truth.

"It is both important and difficult to speak of our Christian faith in our own homes. Our words are strengthened or weakened by the lives we live. Can I make my life harmonize with my profession of faith?"—Nashville Advocate.

The State of Mississippi has been "saved" many times before.

DIED OF THE ROT

On Tuesday, August 7, in the year of Our Lord, 1923, a publication which got access to the United States mails in the city of Jackson under the guise of being a newspaper, died of the rot, whatever that is. This publication first appeared as "The Issue," and wore that name out, then it came out under another name and called itself "Vardaman Weekly." Being a sort of bastard, there was no law against its changing its name. Whenever any cause is so questionable that it cannot get an airing through ordinary newspaper channels, and when ninety per cent of the christian pulpits of the country refuse to lend it the color of decency, and then it undertakes to bespatter the public mind with its own heterogeneous and befoaled doctrine, it is time to call in the political sanitary officer, and that is what the people of Mississippi did.

If there can be one single benificent or worthy deed laid at the door of the demised publication, we confess that we are unable to see it. It was a strife breeder. It preached nothing but political hatred and discord. It died as it should have died without friends. It has milked many a poor, deluded brother to a fare-you-well. Those who have paid their subscriptions in advance are wiser now and it is hoped that they will profit by what they have learned, or better, perhaps, what they have failed to learn from the columns of this now putrefying sheet.

It is with some degree of hesitancy that we thus speak of the dead, but the fact that we may point a moral or adorn a tale to some wayfaring brother, is our apology for doing so.

"A Jew who had done a worthy act on the Sabbath which others refused to do was reproached for it and replied: 'Good deeds have no Sabbath.' "—Ex.

The eyes of motion picture producers are centered on theatrical box offices throughout the country during the week of September 2 to 8, when most of the motion picture theatres in the United States will celebrate the sixth annual Paramount Week.

Paramount Week, the first week in each new season, has come to be established in the motion picture trade as marking the industry's best effort, and this year it is expected by producers that this Paramount Week will be more successful than any other held before. The purpose of each annual Paramount Week is to focus the attention of the public on the advances made during the year in motion picture art and to show that during the coming season the theatres playing the better type of pictures will warrant the patronage of their public.

Manager Homer J. Williams of the Opera House makes the announcement he is going to celebrate Paramount Week this year with a program of Paramount pictures calculated not only to prove unquestionably the leadership of this brand of motion pictures, but at the same time assure a program of the most comprehensive entertainment Grenada has known in many moons.

DR. COUNTISS IN PULPIT

Coldwater, Miss., Aug. 28.—Dr. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada College, has just made a visit of a couple of days to Coldwater, where he has numerous friends. He preached two able sermons at the Methodist Church while here and also told of the work being accomplished by the institution of which he has been the head during the past 14 years. Coldwater is well represented at Grenada College by half a dozen young ladies, who will be leaving home within a short time to resume their studies.

Jean nibbled the end of the penholder and gazed dreamily out on the dreary, gray landscape. She had dabbled in literature for more than a year now with varying success; problem stories, love stories, even poetry. Some of her ships at sea had come "a-sailing home," but a number had really found small harbors. Now she wanted to try for bigger game. Why not knock at the door of the first-class magazine that had fallen into her hands that morning?

Jean determined this afternoon to buckle down to business and not allow her wits to go on one of their wool-gathering expeditions. Baby Jimsey was settled for his long nap. There was a fresh loaf of gingerbread in the pantry and a bowl of whipped cream. She would have baked macaroni for supper and johnnycake. They hadn't had johnnycake for a long time and Tom was fond of it.

The tinkle of the telephone downstairs startled her and she hastily took another nibble from her penholder. It was probably Mrs. Wells ready for a visit, or maybe Elsie Bishop wanted her fudge cake recipe. Jean gazed around the room rather distractedly. She had the foundation for what really appeared a good story in her mind. Again the tinkle of the telephone. Jean raised her eyes to the motto she had hung above her desk.

"Concentrate all your thoughts upon the work in hand. The sun's rays do not burn until brought to a focus."

She read it twice. For two hours after that nothing could be heard but the ticking of the clock and the rustle of paper. The baby awoke in the next room as she straightened her tired shoulders with the finish of the story.

When Jean hurried to the front door, in answer to Tom's familiar ring, she was nearly overcome to find he had brought a man, an absolute stranger, home for supper. With dismay the vision of the simple meal flashed through her mind—and the johnnycake. Well, it was Tom's fault. He had no right to surprise her in that way. With true feminine adaptability to the unexpected, however, she smiled her brightest, added a few touches to the table and had sense enough not to apologize for its simplicity.

Mr. Arnold proved to be very friendly. He was an elderly man with deep-set gray eyes—"a student of human nature," thought Jean. He enjoyed the johnnycake thoroughly, and had a second helping of the gingerbread and whipped cream. In the living room, after the dishes were washed and the baby put in his crib, Jean undertook to entertain him while Tom was down cellar attending to the furnace. During the course of the conversation Mr. Arnold let drop the fact that Tom had attempted to get her on the telephone in the afternoon to meet them for supper, if she could find some one to stay with the baby.

"And I'm rather selfishly glad he didn't," he added, with a twinkle of his gray eyes, "for I haven't had johnnycake like that since I used to visit my grandmother years ago."

Jean remembered the tinkling of the telephone and the reading of the motto and blushed guiltily. Then she laughed.

"I'll just have to tell you, Mr. Arnold," she said, "how I was trying to concentrate and lost a perfectly good party."

And therewith she related in her own bright, inimitable manner, her ambitious attempt of the afternoon.

"But you were right, Mrs. Bennett," laughed her guest, when she had finished. "It's no use trying the crossroads, even if they might lead to a supper downtown. And I'd like to see that story," he added. "I have a friend interested in ambitious young writers."

Jean timidly gave him the manuscript, and then went upstairs in answer to a call from Jimsey. She had to stay longer than she had expected, and when she came down Mr. Arnold was just leaving, and Tom was going to walk to the car with him.

A few minutes later Tom returned and, hurrying into the living room, caught her by both hands.

"Great for you, Jean. You've done it this time. The old boy is going to send you a check in the morning, and he wants more stuff as soon as you can write it."

Jean looked absolutely bewildered.

"Oh, Tommy, what do you mean? Who is he, anyway?"

"Who is he?" said Tom, giving his wife a look of pride. "Why, he's the editor of the very magazine you were going to try your story on. I tried to get you on the telephone this afternoon. He thinks it is one big joke."

Jean dropped onto the couch. "And I gave him johnnycake for supper," she murmured.

Economy in High Places.

The saving of $100,000 a year in the expenses of the British royal household, without impairment of its efficiency or the limitation of any court functions, has been made possible by Queen Mary's practical co-operation. The queen is a most efficient housewife.

Brought up in a family not too well endowed with this world's goods, she was trained from early childhood in practical housewifery. Her knowledge of the subject has been of incalculable service to her royal husband, for the King is by no means a rich man. The royal grant of $2,400,000 a year seems large to the average person, but there is not much of it left when the expenses of royal hospitality and upkeep have been provided for.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 2

PAUL, THE APOSTLE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 22:8, 4-10; Philippians 3:4-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—"I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."—Phil. 3:14.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Romans 10:17; 15:18-21; II Cor. 11:1-12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Paul Became a Christian.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul the Missionary.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul the Dauntless.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul's Contribution to Christianity.

Paul's name stands second to none in the annals of history. The story of his life is of perennial interest.

I. His Birth. (v. 8 cf. Phil. 3:17).

He was born in Tarsus of pure Hebrew stock. He could with legitimate pride boast of godly ancestry. It is highly important that each generation should so live that no handicaps be placed upon their children.

II. His Home Training. (3:5).

His parents were pious people and carefully reared him according to Jewish standards. Most religious leaders spring out of such homes; for example, Moses, Samuel, Timothy. Stern principles of integrity were inculcated in him thus giving him strength of character to impress the world. He was strongly attached to the peculiarities of the Jewish religion. The heroes which molded his life were such men as Joseph, Moses, David, Isaiah instead of Achilles, Hercules and Ulysses.

III. His Education. (Acts 2:3).

1—His Patriotism. He was brought up to love his nation. He proudly affirmed, "I am a Jew." Paul was a nationalist of the true type. Children should be taught to love their nation.

2—A Love for the Bible. The Scriptures were to him the very Word of God. What was found written therein was the final word for Him. Loss of love for the Bible and implicit faith therein is a tragedy.

3—Zealous for God. (Acts 22:3). The word zealous literally means "to boil." Zeal without knowledge is better than no zeal at all.

4—Conscientious. His supreme aim was to possess a conscience void of offense. Conformity to the dictates of conscience is demanded. It is the law of life for every man that because of the blight of sin the conscience needs to be taught by God's Word.

5—He Had a Trade. Every Jewish boy, regardless of his father's wealth, was taught a trade. It was a saying among them that, "He who failed to teach his son a trade, taught him to steal." This would be a good plan in modern days.

IV. His Conversion. (Acts 22:6-10).

1—On the Way to Damascus. (v. 6) He was the enemy of Christ and was on his way to Damascus authorized to bring sound such Christians as might be found to Jerusalem to be punished. While on this journey he had time for reflection and conscience began to work.

2—A Light from Heaven. (vv. 6-9).

As this light burned through the sky over him, he fell to the ground humiliated. Accompanying the light was a voice saying, "Saul, why persecutes thou me?" Upon inquiry as to who was speaking, the Lord declared that it was Jesus of Nazareth whom he was persecuting.

3—An Honest Inquiry. (v. 10). He was willing to do what the Lord willed, so he was instructed to go to Damascus where fuller light would be given.

V. His Estimate of Christ. (Phil. 3:7-9).

When he came to know Christ, he counted all but loss in comparison with Him. He saw Christ as the supplier of righteousness. He who has Christ and His righteousness has everything worth while.

VI. His Transcendent Aim. (Phil. 3:10-14).

1—His aim was to know the power of Christ's resurrection, even that he might be made conformable to His death and have fellowship in His sufferings.

2—He desired to attain unto the resurrection of the dead. This refers to the first resurrection in which the believers shall come forth from among the wicked dead.

3—He pressed toward the mark. He did not count that he had yet attained. He deprecated his present attainments, perceived the dignity of his calling and pressed forward with all his strength in order that he might win the prize. The conditions which determine growth are first, a decided dissatisfaction with present attainments; second, perception of the height of truth, and third, a resolute determination to attain at whatever cost.

IV. Humanity.

Humanity is indeed a happy lot, when we can repeat ourselves in others, and still be young as they—Dickens.

Evidence of Immortality.

Our dissatisfaction with any other solution is the blazing evidence of immortality.—Emerson.

The Age Before Us.

Our ancestors have traveled the iron age; the golden age is before us.—St. Pierre.

A GODSEND TO ME SAYS MRS. BROWN

Louisiana Woman Believes That Stella Vitae Actually Saved Her Life.

"I do believe that Stella Vitae saved my life and made me a well and happy woman," said Mrs. Ola Brown, Route 1, Box 9, Bolivar, La.

"I was so weak and rundown that I didn't think I could live much longer. At times my back would ache till it nearly killed me and my head ached so it almost drove me distractred. I felt tired and worn out and had no life or energy.

"My friends advised me to try Stella Vitae and I began taking it. It built me up wonderfully and I feel like I have been made over again and am strong and healthy enough to do all my housework without the least bit of trouble."

Stella Vitae may be obtained from any druggist and the purchase price will be refunded if it fails to bring relief.

Miss Lucy Talbert left Wednesday at noon for Greenwood where she went to be the guest for several days of her friend, Miss Edna Brown.

Miss Leora Bowers of Memphis, has been since last Friday a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave W. Dogan on Cherry Street. Miss Bowers is most pleasantly remembered in Grenada, having resided here for a number of years, and her numerous friends are always glad to greet her on her occasional visits here.

Miss Mildred Stevens is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ragsdale McNeil, in Greenwood for a few days. She left Wednesday at noon.

Miss Lesley Nabers spent the past week-end in Jackson where she was the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Proudfit had the pleasure of having with them last Saturday and Sunday, Miss Adelaide Duval, from Sardis who is Mrs. Proudfit's sister.

Mrs. L. J. Doak entertained most charmingly at bridge on Tuesday afternoon in honor of her husband's sister, Mrs. J. P. Fisher, of Clover Hill, and of Miss Leora Bowers, of Memphis, who is the guest of Mrs. Dave W. Dogan. Despite the inclemency of the weather, there was a good number of players all whom enjoyed the game. The refreshments were delicious.

The refreshments were daintily served and were especially delightful.

Mrs. Wyndham Fletcher left last Friday at noon for her home in Indianola after having visited for several days in Grenada in the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Brown and family on Margin Street. During her stay here there were several very delightful and informal parties and entertainments given in her honor, among them a dinner party given by Mrs. N. J. Carothers on Wednesday evening, a moonlight picnic that night, a cook party Thursday morning with Mrs. Frank Hayes as hostess and a box party Thursday night at which Mrs. E. L. Bass was the hostess.

Mesdames R. W. Mullin and two young children and Mrs. J. W. Hill spent several days the first of the week in Memphis.

Miss Bird Sharp returned Monday at noon from a several days' visit with relatives in Coldwater.

Miss Louise Perry left Wednesday at noon to spend until Monday in Webb as the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. B. Perry, Jr., in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Catoe.

Mrs. R. T. Hamilton came down from Batesville to spend Tuesday and Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Kimbrough, and family.

The Sentinel joins with her many friends in wishing for Mrs. R. L. Bell a speedy recovery from a serious illness. Mrs. L. S. Bell, a sister, who had been with her for several days, left Monday for her home in Pocahontas, Tenn. Another sister, Mrs. E. E. Hurt, of Memphis, is here now and expects to remain until Mrs. Bell's condition shows some improvement.

Mrs. J. B. Perry, Jr., left the latter part of last week to spend several days in Webb visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Catoe, and family.

RED CARNATIONS

By LAURA MONTGOMERY

(© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

DICK took out his letter and read it as the train neared his station.

"Doesn't it seem odd, Dick, to be engaged and yet to have been separated so long that we shall have to become acquainted all over again? I am greatly changed. I sometimes wonder if you will be terribly disappointed and wish you had waited to ratify old old love affair. I'm coming down to meet you, and so as to be sure that you know me I'm going to wear a red carnation on my suit. Sounds silly, but I want you to take a good look at me and if—oh, I can't bear to think of that continuity, but if you have any regrets, why don't speak to me?"

The man's eyes were a bit misty as he read.

"Nina was always so sensitive," he reflected, "sensitive and highly strung. She has brooded over her changed looks until she's lost her sense of values. Of course her recent illness would pull her down, but a few months will—"

Pressing about the great iron gates were many people waiting to welcome friends, and Dick's dark eyes roved from woman to woman in search of the face he loved. Nina would, of course, look much older, fourteen years makes a great difference.

Dick paused as his gaze fell upon a mass of color, not one carnation but a great cluster of them. He stood staring, a growing dismay turning his eager anticipation into the gaiety of certainty. The girl's face was partly averted, but the profile underneath the spotted veil was palpably made up.

Layers of thick white powder struggled for place with a red so false that Dick was instantly reminded of the grotesque adornments that the Africans used for certain ceremonies.

A full, fringed cape with crossed bands in front swung behind her, billowed by the breeze. A great black beaver hat, rakishly on one side, adorned the masses of frizzled bobbed hair. Nina had said that she had her hair cut, but she had not said that she had, also, touched it up, and this she must have done, for her hair had, formerly, been a smooth, soft brown, while this was reddish.

Even her mouth was disfigured by her passion for red, and sticky traces of lipstick formed a cupid's bow that would have been bold behind the footlights.

"Well, cutie," came a masculine voice, "waiting to meet your sweetie?"

The frizzled head nodded gayly: "He's coming home to marry me," she answered, and Dick grew sick at heart; her voice, too, had coarsened and her speech was punctuated by pauses in which she chewed gum.

"I'll be dashed if I do any such thing," decided Dick as he saw the loudly dressed stranger lean down and take a carnation from the cluster, and he turned on his heel alertly as he saw the girl turn in his direction.

He hurried out into the gray fog of the autumn day and stood on the bridge moodily. Dazedly he tried to co-ordinate Nina's letters that had been filled with beautiful thoughts, sentences that showed clearly her high ideals, and the incredible creature who had smirked flirtatiously at the stranger in the checked suit.

A small person with a pale, wistful face and blue eyes stopped and regarded him timidly: "It looks like him, allowing for the tan and—" she thought and then flushed as his absorbed gaze fell unseeingly upon her—"no, it cannot be."

A fire engine clanged past, narrowly missing a taxicab which, swerving, nearly ran down the girl.

"Narrow escape," cried Dick excitedly, lifting her bodily and putting her safely beside the rail of the bridge.

"Why, Dick, is it you?" came a low, soft voice that took the man straight back to the past.

And then he looked under the little velvet hat that so becomingly finished the smart blue suit with the snowy, frilled collar, and saw Nina, the old Nina of his dreams. "Why," he gasped, "you wrote that you would meet me wearing a red—"

She laughed a bit breathlessly and one tiny gloved hand indicated a small red flower among the lace frills.

"There was a blockade on the car track," she explained; "that's why I'm so late. I saw you right away, but you looked so queer and stern that I didn't dare—that is—"

Dick took her arm and signaled to a taxi. "I cannot bear to have you look at her, sweetheart," he interrupted; "any one can buy a red carnation, but there is no one who can look like you—"

"Then you don't think I have changed so much?" blushed Nina as the cab whirled them away.

He regarded adoringly the soft brown looks that lent her an oddly childlike look. "I love it," he said simply; "Nina, you are prettier than you were when I left you. Sometimes," he added cryptically, "mistakes make one appreciate what a man possesses," and smiled at her mystified expression.

Always in Evidence.

Baby was nodding. "The sandman's coming around," softly sang the young mother.
